Substance Abuse Video

A Meeting at the Crossroads Straight Talk from Real Teens About Substance Abuse

Interest Level: Teens and preteens

Teens Warn Teens: Stay Off Drugs.

This honest, hard-hitting video shows teens and preteens the real consequences of drug and alcohol use. Teens in a juvenile detention facility tell how they got involved with drugs and talk about the negative consequences of their decisions. Their experiences serve as a warning to others who might choose the same path.

The video also includes interviews with teens in a SADD (Students Against Destructive Decisions) program who have committed to staying clean and sober. In a rare face-to-face meeting, the incarcerated teens and the teens in SADD discuss peer pressure and what it takes to stay away from drugs.

The message in A Meeting at the Crossroads is clear: Peer pressure and environment may play a role in drug use, but the issue ultimately comes down to choice. Teens have the power to choose their friends wisely and decide for themselves whether or not to drink and use drugs. An ideal length for any workshop or classroom setting, the video is appropriate for both at-risk and general youth populations. It can be shown in schools, agencies, counseling centers, support groups, and other settings where youth need to hear straight talk on the issues.

Key Features:

A Meeting at the Crossroads provides a unique point of view from both sides of the teen drug issue. Teens who normally would never talk to each other sit down and have an honest discussion about peer pressure and substance abuse.

The Road to Drug Abuse

"Drug addiction will never happen to me." This myth believed by most teens is explored in this program. The progressive series of events leading to substance abuse and dependency is explored as well as the effects to the user. The fact that this can happen to anyone is stressed. The four stages of chemical dependency are detailed including the signs and symptoms of each and the effects to the user and his or her family and friends is described. The importance of self-esteem and peer pressure in the progressive process of dependency is detailed and the link with genetic predisposition is defined. Physical and psychological dependence are defined and the importance of tolerance in the progressive process of dependency is explored. © 2001

Effects of Drugs on Adolescents

Teens using drugs often do desperate things and this CD takes a look at how an adolescent's life is affected by drug use. The symptoms of drug use are explored as well as the consequences on the user's school and job performance. An adolescent on drugs feels immortal and powerful and the harm these dangerous illusions can cause is explored. Describes how a sudden change in behavior and friends could be associated with drug use and describes the effects on the user's family. The concepts of denial and enabling are described and how they negatively affect both user and family. © 2001

Understanding Teenage Depression

As many as one-half of all teens suffer from depression at some time or another and depression is the leading factor contributing to teen suicide. This CD explores many of the mental health problems affecting today's adolescents including conduct and learning disorders, alcohol and other drug use, and depression. Helps teens understand that most feelings of depression are a common part of every day life, that they are temporary and that suicide is not the solution. Explores the fact that adolescents cannot tolerate being alone and how that triggers isolation and alienation. Discusses how self concept and sexuality are central issues in a teen's feeling good about him/herself and describes the characteristics of high and low self esteem. © 2001

Alcohol and Genetics

Alcohol is the most widely used drug of all. This video explores why a certain percentage of those who drink become alcoholics. Through the use of mice in his laboratory, Dr. V. Gene Irwin, Co-Scientific Director, Alcohol Research Center, University of Colorado, demonstrates on video the effects of alcohol when ingested and explains the research that there is a genetic basis for addiction. Discusses alcohol's disinhibiting quality and the research that the person who is insensitive to the effects of alcohol is the most likely to develop an alcohol addiction problem. © 2000

GS251 Alcohol & Genetics Video $99

Crack/Cocaine

Crack/Cocaine is the quickest addiction of all. The video explores the physiological and psychological affects of cocaine. The origin and methods of use of cocaine and crack are detailed as well as the effects on the user's family and friends and society as a whole. Also describes the effect to the dopamine system of cocaine use, the cycle of euphoria and depression, and the ease of addiction. The video emphasizes the highly toxic nature of crack and its almost immediate addictive qualities. The fact that addiction can be treated but never cured is emphasized. © 2000

GS253 Crack/Cocaine Video $99

Marijuana

This video discusses the physical and psychological effects of marijuana use. Experts in the field of drug abuse describe the physical effects of smoking pot, including short-and long-term symptoms and the psychological effects of marijuana. The threat of marijuana addiction is explained and the fact that - contrary to many adolescents' beliefs - chronic marijuana use can be destructive to normal development. © 2000

GS252 Marijuana Video $99

Substance Dependency

This video provides an in depth exploration of substance dependency. Experts describe the impact of substance dependency on society and discuss the different classes of drugs. First addressed are barbiturates and narcotics, their symptoms and side effects. Then stimulants, such as cocaine and amphetamines are detailed including an in-depth look at the danger of crack use and its extreme addicting qualities. Finally, designer drugs and hallucinogens are also discussed. © 2000

Straight From the Shoulder - Jim

This video explores the progression of chemical dependency. The actual story of a young man called Jim, who at age nine was placed in the court system and now at age 14 has spent the last five years in and out of several institutions. Jim began drinking and smoking pot at age nine. By fifth grade he had been suspended from school, sent to a psychiatric hospital, and placed in the court system. Always believing he was "too young to be an alcoholic" he finally realized he had a problem when he was locked up for three months. This time, Jim asked to go into chemical dependency treatment. As he concludes, "Drugs took me a lot of places, but they didn't get me anywhere." © 2000

Straight From the Shoulder - Marci

This video explores the issue of substance use and teenage suicide. The actual story of a young woman called Marci is examined. Marci was introduced to alcohol at the age of ten by her parents. By fifth grade she was smoking pot. By age 16, Marci had attempted suicide twice. After chemical dependency treatment, she soon started using drugs again. The feelings of loneliness and fear escalated until one day after a hit of acid, her attempted suicide this time was almost successful. She describes her trip to the hospital, her slow recovery and her treatment for chemical dependency. © 2000

Straight From the Shoulder - Frank

This video is an actual story detailing the consequences of drug use. From his jail cell, a young man named Frank recounts his involvement with drugs beginning at age 13 and the progression of his drug use until several years later when he was responsible for his best friend's death in a car accident. Frank describes the horror of realizing he had killed his best friend. He concludes by stating that the reality of his friend's death will be with him forever and is more severe punishment than being locked up in prison. © 2000

Substance Use: A Risk to the Unborn

Dr. Washington Hill, Director of Maternal Fetal Medicine, Creighton University Medical Center, defines Fetal Alcohol Syndrome (FAS) and describes the symptoms and characteristics displayed in newborns. He explains how a pregnant woman should not use alcohol or any other drugs during her pregnancy in order to avoid FAS. Mr. Bruce Johnson, a noted nutritionist, explains the effects of the syndrome on the fetus. Dr. Hill also advises against the use of other drugs during pregnancy, including cocaine, marijuana, heroin, cigarettes, and aspirin since the fetus can suffer severe adverse effects from these substances as well. © 2000. Understanding Student Leadership

In this video, students from a large metropolitan high school and a suburban school relate their own experiences and understanding of student leadership. It is evident that there are a lot more leaders in schools than just the "team captains" or "student council presidents." Anyone who takes the initiative to help someone else make a decision is a leader as well as anyone who takes someone else along. Whether students see themselves as leaders or followers, they need to know where they're going in relation to alcohol and other drugs. Ms. Mandy Little, a high school prevention coordinator, discusses the issue of peer pressure on influencing students' decisions. Dr. Vivian Jenkins Nelson, Director of the Hubert H. Humphrey Center, University of Minnesota, discusses the dynamics of leadership, leaders as risk takers, and accepting responsibility. The importance of using leaders to help students participate in drug free activities is emphasized. © 2000. Sixth on a series of 7. ES301 Understanding St. Lead VHS $99

Identifying Student Leaders

This video points out the different groups in every school that have dominant individuals who set the direction of the group's values and behavior. Students from several high schools discuss the types of groups in schools. Ms. Mandy Little, a high school prevention coordinator, discusses how leaders organized drug free activities and their influences. Dr. Vivian Jenkins

Nelson, Director of the Hubert H. Humphrey Center, University of Minnesota, explains the dynamics of leadership and peer pressure in relation to alcohol and other drugs. Discussion by both students and adults on how leaders influence their groups to stay straight is provided on this video. © 2000. Seventh in a series of 7. ES302 Identifying St. Lead VHS $99
